On Nov. 25 he visited the saloon of Nicholas Downey, at No. 654 West Thirty-fourth street, and handed the bartender a check drawn on the Cfelsea Exchange Bank, No. 225 West Thirty-fourth atrect, to the order of Joseph Gairney and signed by Murphy. "Joe is my breiber," he said, 'and he wants the money to pay off a couple of men he has just discharged,"
The bartender slowed the check to Downey, who promptly paid the amount. Later the forgery was dissevered and Wilson was arrested.

Mr. Hardcastle proved to be a former employee of the Standard Oil Company and what the Standard Oil attorneys call a "willing witness." They objected to his testimony from the start.

Mr. Hardcastle worked in the accounting department of the Standard Oil Company, at Albany, from 1221 to 1330, when he went to Cleveland. O., and entered the esploy of the Republic Oil Company. Previous to his employment in Albany he worked for the Standard Oil Company at Glovervilla. N. Y., where Congressman Lattauer comes from. By Mr. Hadlay:

Q. How did you come to go to Cleveland from Albany? A. Walter Jennings requested my transfer. He was on the domestic trade committee of the Standard Oil Company, The Albany masager instructed me to call on Mr. Jannings at No. 25 Breadway and I do so at 10 'clock next morning.

Witness said that Jennings advised him to make the change and took him to W. H. Tillord.
